FOREWORD

As the pages are turned in this record of the 1870 census of Ashley County, Arkansas, one will readily realize that there is definitely a lesser degree of accuracy here than in the 1850 and 1860 censii. The copyist is, nevertheless, extremely grateful to Mrs. Thomas H. Bowles, an experienced microfilm reader, who gladly took on the job of transcribing these records, in exchange for other records copied of Ashley County by the Genealogical Records chairman of Colonel Francis Vivian Brooking Chapter, NSDAR. Mrs. Bowles' job was not an easy one as will be evidenced by the fact that names were poorly spelled, and the handwriting extremely difficult to decipher.

In copying these data from Mrs. Bowles' cards, it has been realized that many of the ages and places of birth, and even names of the various people recorded, seem to have been "picked from the air"; the head of the family has not always been listed at the beginning of each dwelling; often families living in the household of another name appear to have had their given names listed first rather than their surnames; babies have been listed as living in households by themselves; and negro parents are recorded with white children, and vice versa, in this census. This procedure has not been changed herein. But when entire families whom the copier has known to have been white, have been listed as black, the (B) has been purposely omitted.

Even though the census has been enumerated under the very poorest of circumstances, no apologies are made for it, for it is the best record that can be had almost 100 years later of those persons who lived in Ashley County in 1870. If you, the reader, recognize a name or family in this census which needs correction, the Ashley County librarian or the copyist invite your help in clarifying the contents of this census, and they will be happy to make necessary corrections. Space has purposely been left in this copy for additions and corrections.

(B) = black or negro; (W) = white; (M) = mulatto. When no distinction is made, it can be assumed the person is white.
